Porous or Damaged Hair	Rinse more in these areas	Rinse more in these areas

- The less of the product you rinse, the straighter the results will be.

- If hair is very damaged or porous, be sure you have rinsed enough in those areas.
 - Concentrate rinsing on roots/hairline and damaged areas. Start at the hairline and finish in lower areas
 - Caution: too high of heat on blonde hair can cause damage and discoloration
 - STRAND TEST for blonde hair, we recommend doing a strand test to see how the color will be effected. Follow the directions of the treatment as they apply to your client's hair type; allow Step 2 to process, and rinse accordingly. Take a small section of hair and dry 100%; after drying your test section 100%, you may begin to flat iron. If you see the color is shifting drastically, bring the client back to the sink and rinse more. If the color of your test strand does not shift dramatically, you may continue the flat-ironing portion of Step 2
5. For best results, we recommend using the Magic Sleek Pro Titanium Iron. Set your temperature to 450 F (or as high as hair can bear.) During the flat-ironing portion of Magic Sleek Step 2, creating tension is essential. When flat ironing, you should feel tension in your muscles as you pass over each section. Create your tension, and then pull the iron downward starting from the root, keeping your hair sections pulled taut. Your motion should be a fluid and steady sweep, focusing on the root with the most tension and later joining sections together to pass over with tension at ends. The joining of sections helps protect the more fragile parts from damage. Flat iron passes and curl patterns vary for each individual head of hair.

- For straightest results: Pass over each section 20-30 x (or as many times as the hair can bear.)

- To remove frizz: Pass over each section 10-20 x

- To redefine curls: Pass over each section 5-10 x

Step 3 Finisher

1. Begin to section hair; apply Step 3 Finisher, starting at the nape of the neck and working from roots to ends. Comb through to saturate well.
2. Process for 6 minutes.
3. Rinse 100%. Apply Magic Sleek Maintenance Conditioner; allow it to process for 6 minutes, then rinse.
4. (Optional) Apply Magic Sleek Emergency Repair; process for 15+ minutes, and rinse 100%.

5. Apply Magic Sleek Acai Oil (optional). We recommend blow drying without brushes to show the true results of the treatment. When leaving your chair, your client should have straight, smooth and frizz free hair.
